Team Builders wins award

Team Builders Plus, a global, Cherry Hill-based team building and leadership development organization, recently received the Emerald Award from Inscape Publishing, of Minneapolis, for outstanding consulting achievements. It has also been named Performance Support Systems Inc. of Newport News' number one associate for 2006, and PSS's all-time global distributor.

The Emerald Award from Inscape Publishing places Team Builders Plus in the top one-half of 1 percent of consulting companies globally. As a leading producer for Inscape Publishing, Team Builders Plus has helped tens of thousands of managers and teams improve their performance using the DiSC Classic. This is a research-based self-assessment tool that has helped more than 40 million people improve performance, increase job satisfaction and value differences, according to officials.

According to Team Builders Plus president Jeff Backal, "Inscape Publishing's quality materials are integrated into our client solutions, focusing on leadership, management, team building, and other employee-development initiatives."

Jeffrey Sugerman, president and CEO of Inscape Publishing, said, "Such award-winning distribution partners like Team Builders Plus are the key to crafting training and development solutions that create real results for companies and employees around the world."

The PSS award conveys Team Builders Plus' position as the number one provider of the 20/20 Insight GOLD program, a Web-based employee survey system, which allows organizations to conduct 360-degree feedback, team assessments, and organizational climate surveys. Team Builders Plus is also the fourth largest provider of the Train-To-Ingrain process, a 12-module leadership development series combining feedback, classroom and Web-based training, officials said.
