TIP DU JOUR: Turn negatives into positives

Tuesday, April 25, 2006

The training experts and business coaches at Team Builders Plus in Cherry Hill offer the following tips for dealing with negative people in the workplace:

See the benefit of their thinking: Compliment them on their creativity for seeing the risks, barriers and problems.

Ask questions: When people make negative statements, ask questions to clarify their thinking.

Share the positive: Point out the benefits of ideas and decisions.

Ask for examples of problems as they occur: Instead of tolerating negative generalizations, ask others to help solve specific problems at a time when something can be done about them.

Define your boundaries: Let people know that you do not want to hear negative thoughts.

Recognize that whatever you tolerate persists.

If you want to create a positive work environment, take positive steps to address negative behaviors.
