Determine what you would need to do if you had to step into your manager's role. At the same time, provide the coaching to your staff so that they can step into your job.

Step back and determine whether you're fulfilling the expectations outlined for you when you were hired. Are you considered to be a top performer who exemplifies the perfect candidate for your current role? If not, seek ways to become so, via a mentor, coach, a change in your support tools or staff, the way you manage or other factors.
